George Hunt and The Big Bad Bank to premier on truTV

Colorado businessman and founder of The Big Bad Bank documentaries is currently filming for truTV in Hollywood California.

George Washington Hunt, the host of the popular documentary The Big Bad Bank, is currently filming with producers of the truTV, television part of Turner Broadcasting System which is owned by Time Warner. The message of The Big Bad Bank and more specifically, George Washington Hunt, has spread around the world in the last few months to the extent that Hunt was officially invited for a production in Hollywood California. "Its Amazing, people all over the world are responding to my Documentary, we received donations from as far away as Greece and now truTV is going to have me on a nationally televised TV show. I am thrilled," said Hunt.

According to Time Warner, truTV was formally known as Court TV until December 31, 2007, when the channel changed to producing reality, or using the official term, "actuality" television. Currently truTV produces several popular shows and has an interactive website that is based on its more popular programs.

The Big Bad Bank documentary was produced earlier this year and is based on George Washington Hunt's personal experiences and documented accounts of several members of elitist type of groups, some of which founded the banking industry. According to Hunt, "I remember in the early eighties, I was giving seminars and attending functions about the banking industry, the sheer amount of abuse of power and elitists activities that I witnessed was un-imaginable that I started to do something about it. I released The Big Bad Bank documentary to inform the public of what I experienced."

The details of the truTV produced show and air times are still to be determined. Filming will draw to a close within the next few days at which time Hunt will return to Boulder Colorado to continue his work on his life-long project that is The Big Bad Bank Documentaries.
